

Collaborative science

This core area addresses research collaborations and issues that may arise from such collaborations. This includes topics such as setting ground rules early in the collaboration, avoiding authorship disputes, and the sharing of materials and information with internal and external collaborating scientists.